AUGUST 12-16, 2024Donald Meichenbaum, PhDAddressing Issues of Violence and Aggression in Individuals and Communities: Development, Prediction, and InterventionMonday - Friday: 9:00a.m. - 12:30p.m. EDT | 30-Minute Break Daily | 15-Hour Course
Delivery Format: In-Person or Live-Online

Highly publicized and seemingly increasing instances of violence, including mass shootings, police brutality, domestic violence, and international conflict, have raised awareness amongst the general public regarding aggression and its aftermath. Despite a sensitized public with urgency regarding growing mental health needs, a gap remains in practice and policy surrounding how clinicians, communities, and systems can effectively intervene, even in instances when risk has been clearly identified.

Donald Meichenbaum, PhD, is Distinguished Professor Emeritus, University of Waterloo, Ontario, Canada. He is presently Research Director of the Melissa Institute for Violence Prevention in Miami. He is one of the founders of Cognitive Behavior Therapy, and in a survey of clinicians, he was voted "one of the ten most influential psychotherapists of the 20th century." He has presented in all 50 U.S. States and internationally. This workshop provides Dr. Meichenbaum with an opportunity to share his clinical experience and research of over a 50-year career of working with clients and Treatment Centers who cover the entire life-span. He has published extensively, and his recent books include Roadmap to Resilience, Treating Individuals with Addictive Disorders, and The Evolution of Cognitive-Behavior Therapy. Dr. Meichenbaum has just completed a Home Study Legacy Course of the Core Tasks of Psychotherapy.

Join Dr. Donald Meichenbaum, Research Director of the Melissa Institute for Violence Prevention, to explore the detection of 'violence potential' of mass shooters, intimate partners, youth, adults, and police, how aggressive behaviors develop, and the implications for both preventative and treatment approaches. Dr. Meichenbaum will discuss how anger affects brain functioning and decision-making processes and evidence-based cognitive and behavioral strategies and tools to address emotional reactions that lead to harmful acts of aggression and violence in children, adolescents, and adults. Conducting individual, group, and community interventions will be considered, as well as interventions proven to work and approaches that do not.

Moreover, the workshop will consider violence toward oneself in the assessment and treatment of suicidal patients. Evidence-based interventions for perpetrators and victims of violence will be considered, as well as the psychobiological impacts of trauma in the etiology of anger and violent behavior.

Course AgendaMonday:

- The nature and stability of aggressive behavior: implications for interventions
- When is the experience of anger adaptive?
- How aggressive, violent, and antisocial behavior develops
- Considering the mindset of aggressive individuals
- What preventative interventions work, and what interventions can inadvertently increase the incidence of violence

Tuesday:

- Psychobiological impact of trauma: the relationship between childhood victimization and neglect and the development of aggressive behavior
- Evidence-based interventions for children and adolescents with externalizing and internalizing behaviors (e.g., emotional dysregulation that leads to harmful acts of violence and aggression)
- Parent training programs
- Creating safety in school environments
- Increasing treatment effectiveness
- Generalization guidelines designed to achieve
- Creating long-term behavioral changes

Donald Meichenbaum, PhD | Addressing Issues of Violence and Aggression in Individuals and Communities: Development, Prediction, and Intervention | August 12-16, 2024Wednesday:

- Assessment and treatment of aggressive adults
- Predicting the violence potential of individuals (identifying potential mass shooters and violent spousal partners)
- Addressing issues of co-occurring disorders

Thursday:

- Assessment and treatment of suicidal patients
- The mindset of suicidal patients: Implications for interventions
- Treatment of victims of violence, including intimate partner violence
- Individual and community-based interventions sensitive to cultural/racial, gender, and developmental differences
- Barriers to intervention and assessing change

Friday:

- Illustrative intervention programs designed to prevent violence in schools, police departments, and psychiatric facilities
- Programs designed to reduce risk factors and bolster protective factors in the entire population
- The role of media
- Addressing barriers to intervention at the individual and community level
- Can interventions be employed across conflicting Nations?

Course Objectives

Upon completion of this course participants will be able to:

1. Discuss the nature and stability of aggressive behavior and the implications for intervention
2. Describe how and when aggression can be an adaptive response
3. Discuss the psychobiological impact of trauma and the relationship between childhood victimization and neglect and the development of aggressive behavior
4. Name at least two preventative interventions that are proven to work and two that are known to increase incidences of violence
5. Discuss evidence-based interventions for children and adolescents with internalizing and externalizing behaviors
6. Discuss programs aimed at increasing safety in schools
7. Discuss why parent training programs are an effective intervention and how to implement
8. Discuss best practices for intervention with assessment and treatment of suicidal patients across the lifespan
9. Discuss why it is important to have community-based interventions sensitive to cultural/racial, gender, and developmental differences
10. Discuss core tenets of treatment of victims of violence and intimate partner violence, including barriers to intervention and issues in assessing change
11. Describe how to design programs to reduce risk factors and bolster protective factors in the entire population
